Royalties

Dumouriez Publishing Selling Fees are only for sales that the Company makes on your behalf and through their website. The Author will receive the retail price minus selling fee, production and shipping if sold directly to the reader by the Company or if sold through the Company' website

Publisher Sales	You give Us
0-50	$1.00 ea book
51-100	.75 ea book
101 +	.50 ea book

Your paperback, hardcover, or ebook royalties are 100% of the wholesale price (retail price minus trade discount), less production and shipping costs if sold through a bookseller. Trade discounts not to exceed 55% and short discounts not to exceed 25% are offered to our partners on behalf of the Author. Royalties will not be paid for free books and Author purchases.

Author must submit the correct and appropriate Taxpayer Identification information to receive royalties. Author is responsible for paying all necessary taxes on royalties earned and filing all tax documentation in a timely manner. Dumouriez Publishing will supply the necessary 1099 MISC forms and report all royalty payments to the proper agencies.

Pricing

The suggested retail price of the book will be left up to the author. We are providing a sample guide for your consideration. We also suggest researching other books in your genre and books that are close to your subject matter before settling on a price. The current trends and demands often weigh heavily on the ability to move books and should also be taken into account when setting the final book price.

Remember you want to set the price according to the contents and length of the book. You don't want to scare off potential customers by setting your price too high. Keep in mind that these are only suggestions. The price of paperback books, ebooks and hardcover books will differ. Of the three formats hardcover books are usually more expensive and the ebook is usually the least expensive.

These are general suggestions for pricing.
